MODEL UNITED NATIONS • EXECUTIVE BOARD HANDBOOK

UNGA
CHAIRING GUIDE

A practical, step-by-step guide for the Committee Director (CD) and Assistant Committee Director (ACD)

YOUR CORE RESPONSIBILITY

You manage the procedure, maintain order and facilitate fair participation. Delegates control the debate, negotiate solutions and write their own resolutions.

Committee schedule: 9:30 AM – 3:30 PM

Prepared as a practical chairing reference for a first-time UNGA Committee Director.

How to use this guide

Read Parts 1–3 before the event to understand your role and the flow of the day. Keep Parts 4–7 available during the committee as a reference for motions, points, difficult situations and chair language.

IMPORTANT — CHECK YOUR CONFERENCE RULES

MUN rules vary between conferences. Before the session, confirm your official Rules of Procedure (RoP), especially quorum, seconds, motion precedence, speaking times, yields, document submission, amendments, voting thresholds and abstentions. Where this guide says “according to your rules,” your conference's official RoP takes priority.

PART 1 — Understand your role as CD and ACD

As the Committee Director, you are not a delegate and do not represent a country. You are responsible for running the committee fairly and professionally.

Your responsibilities as CD

1. Presiding: Officially open the committee, recognize delegates, announce motions and manage proceedings.
2. Maintaining discipline: Ensure delegates follow the rules, remain diplomatic and do not disrupt the committee.
3. Facilitating debate: Keep discussion relevant to the agenda and give countries fair opportunities to speak.
4. Managing documentation: Oversee working papers, draft resolutions and amendments.
5. Conducting voting: Supervise voting and announce the committee's decisions.

Your ACD's responsibilities

Your ACD is your operational partner. Agree on the division of work before delegates arrive.

You (CD)	Your ACD
Preside over the committee	Maintain attendance records
Recognize delegates	Record speaking time
Announce and rule on motions	Track motions and their outcomes
Manage points and procedural questions	Record points and procedural decisions
Supervise voting and announce results	Count and independently verify votes
Maintain order and neutrality	Track speakers and resolution documents

A PRACTICAL WORKING METHOD

You speak and manage the room. Your ACD records the speakers, times, motions and votes. For important decisions, quickly confer with each other, but the Chair should communicate one clear ruling to the committee.

A good Chair is not expected to know every answer. A good Chair knows the rules, applies them consistently, stays neutral and corrects mistakes professionally.

PART 2 — Essential MUN terminology

Term	Meaning
Delegate	A participant representing a particular country and speaking from that country's position.
Placard	A country-name card raised to request recognition, speak or indicate a procedural request.
GSL (General Speakers' List)	The main formal list of countries wishing to deliver speeches on the agenda.
Moderated caucus	A structured discussion on one focused subtopic, with delegates recognized one at a time.
Unmoderated caucus	An informal negotiation period when delegates can move around, form groups and work on ideas or documents.
Working paper	An informal document collecting ideas and proposed solutions developed by delegates.
Draft resolution (DR)	A formal document proposing actions or recommendations for the committee to consider.
Amendment	A formal proposed change to a draft resolution: adding, deleting or modifying text.
Motion	A formal proposal to move the committee into an activity or procedural stage.
Point	A procedural request, concern or question raised under the rules.

Two especially important distinctions

GSL VS. MODERATED CAUCUS

GSL: delegates discuss the overall agenda and their country's position.
Moderated caucus: delegates discuss one specific subtopic within the agenda.

MODERATED VS. UNMODERATED CAUCUS

Moderated: structured speeches; the Chair recognizes speakers and monitors time.
Unmoderated: informal negotiation; delegates collaborate and develop proposals.

PART 3 — Your complete schedule, step by step

The schedule below follows your handwritten plan. The time blocks are fixed in your plan; the exact procedural details should be adjusted to your conference RoP.

SESSION 1 — Opening and debate

1. Opening and roll call | 9:30–9:40 AM | 10 minutes

You and your ACD take your places, ensure delegates are seated with their country placards and officially call the committee to order. Introduce the Executive Board and conduct roll call by calling each country. Delegates usually answer “Present” or “Present and Voting.” Your ACD records each response and marks absences.

CHAIR SCRIPT

Good morning, distinguished delegates.
The Executive Board welcomes you all to the United Nations General Assembly.
I am [Your Name], serving as your Committee Director, and alongside me is [ACD Name], serving as your Assistant Committee Director.
I hereby call this committee to order. We will now proceed with the roll call.

Voting note: “Present” and “Present and Voting” can have different consequences for substantive voting, particularly abstentions. Confirm the exact meaning in your conference rules.

2. Agenda introduction and rules | 9:40–9:50 AM | 10 minutes

State the agenda, briefly explain why it matters and what the committee is expected to work towards. Then explain essential rules: address the Chair, raise placards to be recognized, use diplomatic language, avoid interruptions and follow the prescribed motions and points procedure. Explain speaking times and the basic way motions will be handled.

CHAIR SCRIPT

Before proceeding with the formal debate, the Executive Board would like to briefly explain the rules of procedure.
Delegates are requested to maintain diplomatic conduct throughout the session. All delegates must address the Chair rather than directly addressing other delegates. Any delegate wishing to speak must raise their placard and wait to be recognized. Motions and points must be raised in accordance with the rules of procedure.

3. General Speakers' List (GSL) | 9:50–10:10 AM | 20 minutes

The GSL is the first formal debate. Countries deliver speeches explaining their position on the agenda, how the issue affects them, what challenges they identify and what solutions they support. Your ACD records the order. You recognize speakers one by one and monitor time. Your schedule does not specify an individual speaking time, so establish one before starting in line with your RoP. A common format is 60–90 seconds, but do not assume this is your conference's rule.

CHAIR SCRIPT

The committee will now move into the General Speakers' List.
The floor is open for delegates wishing to be added to the General Speakers' List. Delegates wishing to speak may raise their placards.

When a delegate finishes early, they may be able to yield remaining time to the Chair, another delegate or questions, depending on your rules. Do not assume yields are allowed.

4. Moderated caucus 1 | 10:10–10:30 AM | 20 minutes

A delegate proposes a focused subtopic, total duration and individual speaking time. For example: “Motion for a moderated caucus on the role of international cooperation in maintaining regional stability, for 20 minutes, with an individual speaking time of 1 minute.” Process the motion under your RoP. If it passes, recognize speakers one at a time. Keep speeches on the chosen subtopic and monitor the one-minute limit.

CHAIR SCRIPT

The motion for a moderated caucus on [topic], with a total duration of 20 minutes and an individual speaking time of 1 minute, has passed. The committee is now in a moderated caucus. The floor is open.

5. Moderated caucus 2 | 10:30–10:50 AM | 20 minutes

Use the same procedure as the first moderated caucus, ideally on a different dimension of the agenda. For example, if the first caucus explored causes, the second might explore possible international solutions. If a proposed topic is almost identical to an earlier one, ask the delegate to clarify how it differs.

6. Unmoderated caucus 1 | 10:50–11:10 AM | 20 minutes

Delegates stop giving formal speeches and begin informal negotiation. They may move around, form blocs, share ideas, negotiate compromises and begin working papers. A bloc is a group of countries cooperating because they share interests or approaches; it need not be permanent. You and your ACD should circulate, observe progress and answer procedural questions without dictating the content of solutions.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR

Are delegates discussing the agenda? Are they negotiating realistic proposals? Are they collaborating across groups? Have they begun organizing their ideas into documents?

7. Buffer and break announcement | 11:10–11:30 AM | 20 minutes

Use this buffer for delays, unresolved procedural matters, attendance checks, document-format clarification and break announcements. Avoid introducing a new debate segment unless necessary and permitted.

Tea break | 11:30–11:50 AM | 20 minutes

The committee pauses. You and your ACD can review progress, check the speakers' list, coordinate with organizers and prepare the room for resumption.

SESSION 2 — Resuming debate and drafting

8. Committee resumes and roll call | 11:50 AM–12:05 PM | 15 minutes

Call delegates back to their seats, call the committee to order and conduct a second roll call. Your ACD updates attendance. Briefly remind delegates where the committee left off and what comes next.

CHAIR SCRIPT

Distinguished delegates, the tea break has concluded. I request all delegates to return to their respective seats. The committee will now resume its proceedings. We will conduct a second roll call to establish the attendance of the committee.

9. Moderated caucus 3 | 12:05–12:25 PM | 20 minutes

Use the same moderated-caucus procedure. By this point, delegates should be moving from identifying problems towards practical solutions. Possible subtopics include implementation, funding, monitoring mechanisms or cooperation with relevant organizations.

10. Unmoderated caucus 2 | 12:25–12:45 PM | 20 minutes

This unmoderated caucus prepares delegates for document work. They should finalize proposals, negotiate disagreements, organize clauses and prepare working papers or draft resolutions. You and your ACD should check progress and identify groups that may need procedural clarification.

11. Working paper and draft resolution | 12:45–1:15 PM | 30 minutes

A working paper is informal and collects the group's ideas. A draft resolution is a formal document that proposes actions for the committee to consider. A draft resolution commonly contains a heading, sponsors and signatories, preambulatory clauses and operative clauses. Use the exact template and submission requirements supplied by your conference.

Section	Purpose	Typical wording
Heading	Identifies the committee, agenda and document information.	United Nations General Assembly; Agenda: [topic]
Sponsors	Countries that took the lead in writing and supporting the document.	Sponsor names, as required by RoP
Signatories	Countries that want the document brought forward for discussion; this does not necessarily mean they support its contents.	Signatory names, as required by RoP
Preambulatory clauses	Explain the background, concerns, existing commitments and reasons for action.	Recognizing; Reaffirming; Concerned by; Acknowledging; Recalling
Operative clauses	State the proposed actions or recommendations.	Calls upon; Encourages; Recommends; Requests; Establishes; Urges

REMEMBER

Preambulatory clause = why action is needed.
Operative clause = what action is proposed.
Sponsors and signatories are not interchangeable. Required numbers vary by conference.

Your role during document preparation

- Explain the required format and how documents must be submitted.
- Check that documents meet the conference's formatting and submission requirements.

- Check that the content is relevant to the agenda.
- Coordinate with your ACD to organize submissions and identify the groups ready to present.
- Do not write the resolutions for delegates or decide which political solution is best.

If two groups submit two draft resolutions, that can be normal. Both may be introduced and debated if the RoP permits. Do not automatically merge them.

Draft resolution consideration and final decision

12. Draft resolution presentation | 1:15–1:35 PM | 20 minutes

Sponsors or designated representatives present their draft resolution. They should explain its objectives, major provisions, proposed solutions, implementation and expected outcomes. If there are multiple documents, allocate presentation time fairly within the 20-minute block.

CHAIR SCRIPT

The committee will now move into the draft resolution presentation segment. The sponsors of the submitted draft resolutions will be invited to present their respective documents. Presenting delegates are requested to explain the objectives, major provisions and proposed solutions contained within their draft resolutions.

13. Questions and discussion | 1:35–1:55 PM | 20 minutes

Delegates ask questions about the draft resolution. Questions may test feasibility, funding, implementation, responsibility, scope or likely outcomes. Recognize delegates one by one and give sponsors an opportunity to respond. You should not defend the document on the sponsors' behalf or take sides.

CHAIR SCRIPT

The committee will now move into the question and discussion segment. Delegates wishing to ask questions regarding the presented draft resolution may raise their placards. Questions should remain relevant to the provisions and proposed solutions of the draft resolution. The sponsors will be given an opportunity to respond.

If a question is irrelevant, redirect it politely. If a sponsor cannot answer, allow them to acknowledge that further clarification is needed rather than inventing an answer.

14. Consultation of the whole | 1:55–2:15 PM | 20 minutes

The exact meaning and format of “consultation of the whole” varies by conference. In many settings, it is an informal or semi-formal opportunity for the entire committee to discuss the draft resolution, negotiate compromises and identify possible changes before amendments and voting. Confirm with your organizers whether this segment is free discussion, recognized speakers or another defined procedure.

Possible discussion areas include weaknesses in the draft, compromise wording, concerns about implementation, possible additions and areas where wider agreement may be possible. Facilitate fairly; do not decide which country's position is correct.

15. Amendments to draft resolution | 2:15–2:35 PM | 20 minutes

An amendment changes an existing draft resolution. It is not a completely new resolution. Common forms are:

- Add: insert a new clause or subclause.
- Modify: change the wording of an existing clause.
- Strike: remove a clause or part of a clause.

A delegate should identify the draft resolution and exact clause, then state the precise proposed addition, deletion or modification. Check the submission format and admissibility under your RoP. Some conferences distinguish friendly amendments (accepted by sponsors under the rules) from unfriendly amendments (which go through a committee procedure, often voting).

CHAIR SCRIPT

The committee will now proceed to the amendment segment. Delegates wishing to propose amendments to the draft resolution are requested to submit their proposed changes in accordance with the rules of procedure. All amendments must clearly identify the relevant clause and specify the proposed addition, deletion or modification.

16. Voting procedure | 2:35–2:55 PM | 20 minutes

Before voting, ensure amendments have been handled and the committee is voting on the correct version of the document. Explain the voting method and applicable options. Depending on your RoP, delegates may vote in favour, against or abstain. Abstentions may not be available in every type of vote or for every delegate.

1. Announce entry into voting procedure. Ask delegates to take their seats and maintain decorum.
2. Explain the vote. State what document or amendment is being voted on and which voting method applies.
3. Collect votes. For a placard vote, call for votes in favour, against and abstentions as permitted by the rules.
4. Count and verify. Your ACD counts; you verify the total and compare it with the required threshold.
5. Announce the result. State the numbers and whether the proposal passed or failed under the applicable threshold.

CHAIR SCRIPT

Distinguished delegates, the committee will now move into the voting procedure. All delegates are requested to take their seats and maintain complete decorum. During voting procedure, no interruptions or unnecessary movements will be permitted, in accordance with the rules of procedure. We will now proceed with voting on [document/amendment].

Example result announcement (fill in actual verified numbers):

VOTING RESULT

In favour: [Number]
Against: [Number]
Abstentions: [Number]

The [draft resolution/amendment] has [passed/failed] in accordance with the applicable voting threshold.

Do not assume the threshold. It may be a simple majority, two-thirds majority or another rule. Also confirm quorum, voting rights, abstention rules and how competing draft resolutions are handled. If a resolution fails, announce the result neutrally and continue according to the schedule and RoP.

17. Closing and adjournment | 2:55–3:10 PM | 15 minutes

Summarize what the committee accomplished, announce the final outcome, thank delegates and formally adjourn the session. Your handwritten schedule reserves 3:10–3:30 PM for transitions and buffer time.

CHAIR SCRIPT

Distinguished delegates,
As we approach the conclusion of today's session, the Executive Board would like to appreciate the participation, cooperation and diplomatic engagement demonstrated by all delegations.
Throughout this committee, we have discussed the agenda, explored various perspectives, negotiated proposed solutions and worked towards a collective outcome.
On behalf of the Executive Board, thank you for your participation.
This committee is hereby adjourned. Thank you, delegates.

PART 4 — Motions and points

Delegates will raise placards to propose motions or raise points. Listen carefully: a motion proposes an activity or procedural change; a point is a procedural request, concern or question.

Common motions

Motion	Purpose
Motion for a moderated caucus	To discuss a specific topic in structured speeches.
Motion for an unmoderated caucus	To allow informal negotiation and collaboration.
Motion to extend a caucus	To continue a caucus, if permitted.
Motion to introduce a draft resolution	To bring a document before the committee under the relevant procedure.
Motion to move into voting procedure	To begin voting, if the motion is allowed at that stage.

Example of a motion

DELEGATE'S MOTION

“Motion for a moderated caucus on the role of international organizations, for 15 minutes, with an individual speaking time of 1 minute.”

You check whether the motion is in order, then follow your RoP for seconds, competing motions, precedence, selection and voting. If it passes, announce the result and begin the activity. If it fails, announce that the committee remains in its current session.

Common points

Point	When it is used	Chair's response
Point of Personal Privilege	A personal difficulty affecting participation, such as not being able to hear.	Address the practical issue where possible.
Point of Parliamentary Inquiry	A question about procedure or the rules.	Explain the applicable procedure.
Point of Order	A delegate believes a procedural rule is being violated.	Listen, assess the point and rule according to the RoP.
Right of Reply	A delegate believes their country's national integrity or sovereignty has been directly insulted, where provided for.	Follow the conference's Right of Reply procedure.

IMPORTANT INTERRUPTION RULE

A point of parliamentary inquiry is not normally a way to interrupt another delegate's speech. Points of order and personal privilege also have specific timing and interruption rules. Follow your conference's RoP.

PART 5 — Unexpected situations and how to handle them

The Chair's most useful qualities are calmness, consistency and neutrality. These are practical responses to situations that may arise.

1. Nobody raises a placard

Wait a few seconds, then repeat: “Are there any motions on the floor?” If nobody responds, follow the default procedure in your RoP. You may move to the next scheduled activity if permitted.

2. Two delegates raise placards at the same time

Recognize one according to your conference's recognition procedure. Your ACD records who was recognized. Apply the same method consistently.

3. A delegate speaks too long

Your ACD monitors time. When time expires, say: “Delegate, your time has elapsed. Kindly conclude your remarks.” If necessary, direct the delegate to yield the floor under the rules.

4. Delegates argue personally

Intervene immediately and redirect the discussion towards policy and diplomatic language.

> USE THIS WORDING
> “Delegates are reminded to maintain diplomatic language. Kindly direct your remarks towards the policies and positions being discussed rather than making personal remarks.”

5. A speech is irrelevant to the agenda

Say: “Delegate, kindly bring your remarks back to the scope of the agenda.” If the delegate continues, use the disciplinary procedure provided by your rules.

6. A delegate asks you a substantive question about the agenda

You are not expected to know every country's foreign policy or every possible solution. Do not invent facts or take a political position. You can say: “The Chair encourages the delegate to explore this question through the ongoing debate and negotiations.”

7. Delegates strongly disagree over a resolution

Disagreement is normal. Do not decide which country is correct. Facilitate discussion, encourage compromise and ensure that each delegation is treated fairly.

8. Delegates are inactive

Encourage wider participation. During moderated caucuses, recognize delegates who have not yet spoken where possible. During unmoderated caucuses, encourage quieter delegates to join discussions without forcing them to adopt a particular position.

9. A draft resolution is incomplete

Identify what is missing and explain the submission requirements. Do not immediately reject it without checking the relevant rules. Example: “Your draft resolution requires clarification of its operative clauses and the prescribed sponsorship information before it can be introduced.”

10. A delegate challenges your decision

Listen to the point of order or procedural concern. Check the rules. If your ruling was incorrect, correct it. If it was correct, explain the procedural basis calmly. A good Chair can acknowledge and correct a mistake.

11. The committee is running late

Use the designated buffer where possible and coordinate with organizers. Do not randomly eliminate voting or deprive delegates of fair participation. Any schedule changes should be consistent with organizer instructions and the RoP.

12. Delegates repeatedly raise disruptive or repetitive motions

Check admissibility and precedence. Do not entertain motions that are out of order. Explain the procedural reason and apply the same standard to all delegates.

PART 6 — What you and your ACD should prepare

CD checklist

- Printed committee schedule.
- Official Rules of Procedure.
- Agenda background guide.
- List of countries and delegates.
- GSL speakers' list.
- Motion tracking sheet.
- Draft resolution submission requirements.
- Amendment submission requirements.
- Voting threshold and attendance record.
- Pen, notebook and timer.

ACD checklist

- Attendance sheet for opening and post-break roll call.
- GSL speaking order and speaker status.
- Speaking-time tracker.
- Motion record and outcomes.
- Point record, if needed.
- List of submitted working papers and draft resolutions.
- Amendment record.
- Voting tally sheet.

Simple attendance record

Country	Opening roll call	After break
Country 1	Present / Present and Voting / Absent	Present / Present and Voting / Absent
Country 2	Present / Present and Voting / Absent	Present / Present and Voting / Absent
Country 3	Present / Present and Voting / Absent	Present / Present and Voting / Absent

Simple voting record

Country	Vote
Pakistan	In favour / Against / Abstain, if permitted
China	In favour / Against / Abstain, if permitted
Russia	In favour / Against / Abstain, if permitted
United States	In favour / Against / Abstain, if permitted

PART 7 — Professional Chair language

Situation	Useful wording
Starting committee	“The committee is hereby called to order.”
Opening the floor	“The floor is now open.”
Recognizing a speaker	“The Chair recognizes the delegate of [country].”
Giving speaking time	“You have the floor for one minute.”
Ending a speech	“The delegate's time has elapsed.”
Starting a caucus	“The committee is now in a moderated caucus.”
Returning to formal session	“The committee will now return to formal session.”
Requesting silence	“Delegates are requested to maintain decorum.”
Rejecting a motion	“The motion is not in order.”
Accepting a motion	“The motion is in order.”
Moving to voting	“The committee will now enter voting procedure.”
Announcing result	“The draft resolution has passed/failed.”
Ending session	“The committee is hereby adjourned.”

PART 8 — Common mistakes to avoid

1. Do not become a participant in the debate. You are neutral and do not represent a country.
2. Do not make decisions based on personal preferences. Apply the Rules of Procedure.
3. Do not let delegates run the committee. Delegates can propose motions; the Chair manages proceedings.
4. Do not confuse caucus formats. Moderated means structured speaking; unmoderated means informal negotiation.
5. Do not rush document work. Incomplete or unclear documents can cause problems during amendments and voting.
6. Do not announce unverified voting results. Have your ACD count and verify the numbers.
7. Do not show favouritism. Apply the same standards to every country.
8. Do not panic during silence. Wait, then follow the prescribed procedure.
9. Do not invent rules. Check the official RoP, especially for voting, motions, points and amendments.

PART 9 — Your entire committee at a glance

Time	Segment	What is happening
9:30–9:40	Opening and roll call	Introduce the Executive Board; establish attendance.
9:40–9:50	Agenda and rules	Explain the agenda and essential procedure.
9:50–10:10	GSL	Countries deliver formal opening speeches.
10:10–10:30	Moderated caucus 1	Focused discussion on a first subtopic.
10:30–10:50	Moderated caucus 2	Focused discussion on another subtopic.
10:50–11:10	Unmoderated caucus 1	Delegates negotiate and form groups.
11:10–11:30	Buffer	Manage delays and prepare for break.
11:30–11:50	Tea break	Committee pauses.
11:50–12:05	Resumption and roll call	Re-establish attendance.
12:05–12:25	Moderated caucus 3	Discuss practical solutions.
12:25–12:45	Unmoderated caucus 2	Develop and organize proposals.
12:45–1:15	Working paper and DR	Prepare formal documents.
1:15–1:35	DR presentation	Sponsors present proposals.
1:35–1:55	Questions and discussion	Delegates examine proposals.
1:55–2:15	Consultation of the whole	Discuss compromises and possible changes.
2:15–2:35	Amendments	Delegates propose formal document changes.
2:35–2:55	Voting	Committee votes under the applicable rules.
2:55–3:10	Closing and adjournment	Announce outcome and close the session.
3:10–3:30	Transitions and buffer	Handle remaining organizational matters.

PART 10 — What makes an effective Chair?

Keep three priorities in mind throughout the committee:

1. Order

The committee should always know what is happening, who has the floor and what comes next. Clear instructions and consistent procedure prevent confusion.

2. Participation

Delegates should have a fair opportunity to contribute, regardless of which country they represent or how experienced they are. Avoid allowing a small group to dominate every discussion.

3. Progress

The committee should gradually move from understanding the issue to discussing solutions, preparing a resolution, considering amendments and reaching a decision.

> THE MOST IMPORTANT DISTINCTION
>
> You control the procedure. Delegates control the debate and the content of their resolutions. You are the facilitator, not the representative of any country.

Final pre-session confirmation list

- I know the official speaking times for GSL and caucuses.
- I know the quorum requirement and attendance procedure.
- I know how motions are entertained, prioritized and voted on.
- I know the rules for points and interruptions.
- I know the required sponsors/signatories and the draft resolution template.
- I know how amendments are submitted and processed.
- I know the voting threshold, abstention rules and voting method.
- My ACD and I have agreed on who records speakers, motions, documents and votes.
- We have a clear way to communicate quietly during the session.

You do not need to appear intimidating or know every answer. Be prepared, calm, fair and consistent. If you keep the committee organized and give delegates a fair chance to participate, you will be performing the essential work of a Committee Director.
