01 · Introducing the GSL 9:50–9:52

CD · OPEN THE FIRST FORMAL DEBATE

"Distinguished delegates,

We shall now begin the first formal debate session of this committee: the General Speakers' List, commonly known as the GSL.

The purpose of the General Speakers' List is to allow each delegation to present its country's official position regarding the agenda.

During this session, delegates are encouraged to discuss the climate-related challenges faced by their countries, their national policies, existing international commitments, and possible solutions to strengthen global cooperation against climate change.

I encourage you to make your speeches relevant, well-structured, and diplomatic.

Delegates should focus on presenting their country's perspective and proposing constructive solutions rather than simply repeating the problems associated with climate change.

The speaking time for each delegate will be [SPEAKING TIME] seconds.

I will now open the floor for the General Speakers' List.

Delegates wishing to be added to the Speakers' List may raise their placards."

02 · Adding Delegates to the GSL

CD

"The floor is now open for delegates wishing to be added to the General Speakers' List."

What happens next?

1. Delegates raise their placards.
2. You recognise them.
3. Your ACD records their country names.
4. The ACD prepares the speaking order.
5. You announce the first speaker.

Example: CD: "The delegation of Pakistan is recognised." ACD records Pakistan on the GSL. Continue until you have an appropriate list of speakers.

If nobody raises a placard
CD: "Are there any delegations wishing to be added to the General Speakers' List?"
If nobody volunteers, follow the conference's approved procedure for continuing debate.

03 · Calling Speakers

Once your ACD has prepared the list, begin calling delegates in order.

CD · FIRST SPEAKER

"The first speaker on the General Speakers' List is the distinguished delegate of [COUNTRY]. You have [SPEAKING TIME] seconds. The floor is yours."

CD · AFTER EACH SPEECH

"Thank you, distinguished delegate of [COUNTRY]."

"The next speaker is the distinguished delegate of [COUNTRY]. You have [SPEAKING TIME] seconds. The floor is yours."

Repeat this process for every speaker.

When speaking time expires
CD: “Delegate, your speaking time has elapsed. Kindly conclude your remarks.”
If the delegate continues: “The delegate is requested to yield the floor.”

04 · What Delegates Can Include

Encourage delegates to structure their GSL speeches around these points:

A. Country introduction
State the country's position and explain why climate change matters to the nation.

B. Nat cha
Des clim rela pro and env eco or soc con

C. Existing policies
Outline national climate policies, environmental programmes, and relevant international commitments.

D. Proposed solutions
Consider cooperation, sustainable development, finance and technical assistance, renewable energy, and risk reduction.

E. Conclusion
Summarise the country's position and express willingness to cooperate with other nations.

Managing the Speakers' List

05 · If Delegates Finish Early

CD

"Thank you, delegate. Your time has been noted."

Follow the conference's rules regarding whether a delegate may yield remaining time. Possible yields, if permitted by your Rules of Procedure:

- Yield to the Chair: The delegate gives remaining speaking time back to the Chair.
- Yield to Questions: The delegate allows other delegates to ask questions, subject to committee rules.
- Yield to Another Delegate: The delegate gives remaining time to another delegate, if permitted.

Do not assume all three options are allowed. Follow the official IBAD-MUN Rules of Procedure.

06 · Relevance and Decorum

If a delegate makes an irrelevant speech

CD

"Delegate, the Chair requests you to remain relevant to the agenda under discussion."

If necessary: "Please bring your remarks back to the agenda of strengthening global action and international cooperation to combat climate change."

If a delegate interrupts another speaker

CD

"Delegates are reminded that interruptions are not permitted unless allowed under the Rules of Procedure. Kindly maintain committee decorum."

07 · Concluding the GSL 10:08–10:10

CD

"Thank you, distinguished delegates, for presenting your respective countries' positions.

The Executive Board appreciates the participation and the perspectives shared during this General Speakers' List.

The committee has now heard several national positions concerning climate change, international cooperation, and possible solutions.

> We shall now move towards a more focused discussion of specific aspects of our agenda.

>

10 · Advice for the Committee Director

- Keep the GSL formal and organised.
- Do not favour any particular country.
- Give every recognised speaker the same speaking time.
- Make sure the ACD maintains the speaker list.
- Avoid lengthy discussions between speeches.
- Keep the committee focused on the climate-change agenda.

- Do not invent procedural rules about yields or questions.
- Watch the clock carefully because the GSL has only 20 minutes.

Final reminder
The purpose of the GSL is to understand where each country stands before moving into focused debate and negotiations.

As Committee Director, remain neutral, recognise delegates fairly, enforce speaking time consistently, and keep the session moving according to schedule.
